YOUTH CORPS OF CHINA. IN THE ARTICLE OF HOMEROLL NO. - Canton, Wah-Tang Jih-pao 25 Dec 50

Chiang Nan-han, deputy secretary of the central committee, New Democracy Youth Corps, in today's issue of the Canton, Han-fang, Jih-pao explained that the national defense must be strengthened and went on to say that the enlistment in military cadre schools must be on voluntary basis and urged the attitude ~~regarding~~^{required} nonenrollees.

Under the heading, "Enlistment Must Be On Voluntary Basis" he said:

"While we hope for a large response from ill-quailty youth, the decision is entirely a matter for each individual. There must be no ridicule or lack of esteem for any who do not apply. In fact, the number to be accepted is limited, and the majority will have to stay in their schools and factories. Unless the proper attitude toward those remaining is maintained, serious rift will appear."

"Volunteering must be on a purely individual basis, not by classes or by quotas assigned to each school or factory. This is for national need and public welfare and must rest on a moral foundation and wide popular support."

"Of course, party members and youth corps members will take the lead, being needed to maintain a high political level among the recruits; but not all these members need apply."

"Decisions as to a candidate's qualifications must be made by the recommendation committees. Decisions as to whether a candidate is needed more in his present line of duty or study, for example, medical profession, will also be made by the committee. Upper division college students could continue their present studies. Skilled workers should not leave to the detriment of their factories. There must be a sane balance between defense and reconstruction."

Under the heading of "What Attitude should be taken by Nonenlisted?"

he said:

"Those who do not apply for the military cadre schools may show their patriotism in another way. First, show encouragement for those who do go on to the military cadre schools. They deserve everyone's respect for going to the front. Second, from now on, give more attention to soldiers and national nature, increasing political awareness and patriotic soul. Be ready at any time to serve the country. Third, let students left behind devote themselves to study, and workers staying in the factories increase production, showing their love of country."

"However, one attitude must be condemned: a negative and anti-social attitude toward the movement and its participants. Such an attitude is harmful to the national welfare and unpatriotic."
